

The Irish are Coming

PHILADELPHIA, PA (February, 2004)

Kildare's is looking for new locations! Americans love to travel and if they can't hop a plane to Ireland, they can visit Kildare's Irish Pub. Kildare's is known through out the Philadelphia area for their authentic Irish experience and the owner is now looking for their next location!

Kildare's Irish Pubs currently has three Philadelphia area locations: West Chester, King of Prussia and Manayunk - all of which opened within the past two years. Each location is painstakingly designed and built to replicate Olde Ireland. From its Gaelic area with hand-hewn log chairs and furnishings to the Shop Area with it's post office and snugs, each pub is truly authentic Irish. But the authenticity doesn't stop there. Kildare's chefs were trained in Ireland and menu dishes were developed featuring Irish classics like fish and chips and Guinness Beef Stew

Owner Dave Magrogan is on a mission...a mission to share a little piece of real Ireland. Kildare's is currently surveying new sites with the hope of opening 2-3 more restaurants in 2005. Kildare's expansion criteria are locations in downtowns, Lifestyle Centers, college towns or revitalizing areas.

Kildare's is currently the number one seller of Guinness, Murphy's, Boddingtons, and Stella Artois in Pennsylvania. It's has been voted Best Irish Pub by both Main Line Today and by County Lines Magazine, and is rated by Zagat as Excellent.

So keep your eyes open...an Authentic Irish Pub may be coming to your neighborhood soon.
